Yes, it has to do with us tracking outcomes. We can't compare pre-program incomes to post-program incomes if we don't collect the pre-program incomes.

Hi Emily,

I'm sorry, but just received a new question from a sub. She is asking why, on the client intake form, FOB financial info is a required field if the client and FOB are unmarried and especially why it would be required if they're not living together. She has asked me this same question a couple of times now and being quite persistent, thought I'd better go ahead and address it with you. Do you have any idea why this info might be required?

Thank you!
